Before replacing the process, watch how people use it.

You introduce another process, but the same argument returns.

An assumption to examine

A better system can replace the need for judgment.

Look at one ordinary moment.

The same policy is used to explain an expectation in one conversation and shut down a question in another.

Observe before deciding.

Notice what the tool permits and what the person using it chooses.

Choose one response to practice.

Choose one tool or policy and examine one decision about how it is being used.

Look back together.

What needs a system change, and what needs a different use of authority? Save this for your next conversation.