Right vs. Best: what do you notice?

Five moments to examine with your team.

A conversation waits for the perfect wording.

Describe a specific example before deciding what it means.

You can explain the ideal but cannot name the next step.

Describe a specific example before deciding what it means.

Preparation continues after you have enough to begin.

Describe a specific example before deciding what it means.

You treat a mistake as proof you should stop practicing.

Describe a specific example before deciding what it means.

You use limited capacity to excuse an avoidable harm.

Describe a specific example before deciding what it means.

Choose one moment.

Notice where preparation becomes a way to avoid beginning. Name the standard you want to uphold and choose one responsible step you can take now.

Bring the observation into the room.

Bring something you have delayed while waiting to do it perfectly. We will examine the best responsible step available. Save these questions.